12 Things to Do in New York's Art World Before March 11

By Paul Laster

March 7, 2016

Opening: “Sarah Braman: You Are Everything” at Mitchell-Innes & Nash

New York-based artist Sarah Braman makes quirky sculptures by marrying found objects, constructed elements of colored glass and Plexi and oddly shaped pieces of plywood bearing brightly colored acrylics and spray paints. For her second solo show at the gallery, the artist uses a tree stump, a trashed truck cab, discarded bunk beds and fabricated glass structures to create eccentric assemblages.
